COURSE OVERVIEW AND BENEFITS

The Administration of Anti-Cancer Drug Therapies double module offers the opportunity for qualified practitioners involved in the administration and care of patients receiving anti-cancer drug therapies, to enhance their knowledge, skills and expertise.

The double module content looks at all aspects of the knowledge and theory surrounding the administration of anti-cancer drug therapies, such as physiology, pharmacology, health and safety issues, assessing and managing side effects and the policies effecting anti-cancer drug administration.

This is a double module. Each module consists of 150 hours of study time and is made up of 30 timetabled hours and 120 hours' private studies which include the opportunity to organise visits to other departments to observe practice and meet individual learning needs.

You can choose to study this double module as part of a pathway or as a stand-alone double module, dependent on your individual need and the needs of your organisation.
