

BIRMINGHAM CITY
University

Faculty of Business, Law and Social Sciences

Proposed Title: 1488: Modern Day Hate in the United Kingdom
School: Social Sciences
Proposed Supervisory Team: Dr Geraldine Lee-Treweek Dr John Bahadur Lamb Mr David McGee
Abstract: Recently the United Kingdom Government announced that referrals to the PREVENT stream of the country's counter terrorism strategy involving people who have adopted an extreme right wing ideology have risen by over a third. Such an increase highlights a gap in the study of violent extremism as despite the wealth of literature written on Al Qa'eda and ISIS the study of extreme right wing political violence has, apart from a few works, gone largely unstudied. Such a gap in the literature is perplexing when recent history is considered and this project is seeking candidates who can address this gap by exploring the nature of extreme right wing groups within the United Kingdom and the threat they may pose.
Applicant Requirements: BA/BSc in humanities or social sciences or marketing. Desirable: MA/MSc in humanities or Social Sciences.
Contact: Dr John Bahadur Lamb John.lamb@bcu.ac.uk 0121 331 5272